locations within the community, where students engaged with passersby, addressing questions and clarifying misconceptions about the disease. Interactive sessions were also held, encouraging participants to discuss their concerns and learn about the importance of regular health check-ups, safe sex practices, and available medical support and counseling services. The campaign underscored the significance of empathy and support for individuals living with HIV/AIDS, aiming to reduce the stigma and discrimination associated with the condition. Throughout the day, the student's enthusiasm and commitment were evident as they effectively communicated the message of awareness and prevention to a broad audience. The campaign concluded with a collective pledge by both students and community members to continue spreading awareness and supporting efforts to combat HIV/AIDS. This AIDS Awareness Campaign not only educated the local community about essential health practices but also highlighted Heramba Chandra College's dedication to social service and public health advocacy, demonstrating the institution's commitment to fostering a well-informed and health-conscious society.

Free Tree Distribution Initiative

Programme Coordinator: Dr. Saddam Hossain Mondal, Assistant Professor, Department of Economics, Heramba Chandra College Joint Coordinators: Mrs. Moumita Ghosh, SACT, Department of Geography, Heramba Chandra College & Mrs. Emon Bagchi, Assistant Professor, Department of Geography, Heramba Chandra College On March 12, 2024, the Campus Harmony & Social Service Unit of Heramba Chandra College launched a significant environmental initiative titled "Free Tree Distribution Initiative" under the guidance of Mrs. Moumita Ghosh, SACT, and Mrs. Emon Bagchi, Assistant Professor, both from the Department of Geography. This "Go Green" initiative saw the enthusiastic participation of 25 members, including a dedicated group of students who played an integral role in its execution. The initiative's primary objective was to promote environmental awareness and contribute to the greening of the community by distributing free saplings to residents. The event began with an informative session where Mrs. Ghosh and Mrs. Bagchi highlighted the importance of trees in combating climate change, improving air quality, and enhancing urban biodiversity. They also educated participants on proper tree-planting techniques and the long-term care required to ensure the saplings' growth and survival. This educational aspect was crucial in fostering a sense of responsibility and encouraging sustainable practices among the community members. Following the educational session, the distribution of saplings commenced. Various species of trees, chosen for their adaptability to the local environment and ecological benefits, were handed out to enthusiastic residents. The saplings included fruit-bearing trees, flowering plants, and native species that would support local wildlife. The choice of diverse tree species aimed to create a balanced ecosystem and provide multiple benefits such as shade, fruit, and aesthetic value to the urban landscape. The participation of students was particularly noteworthy as they assisted in the logistics of the event, including organizing the distribution process, helping residents with planting tips, and spreading awareness about the environmental benefits of trees.

Their involvement facilitated the event's smooth running and instilled a sense of environmental stewardship among the younger generation. Overall, the Free Tree Distribution Initiative was a resounding success, with over 200 saplings distributed to the community. The initiative underscored the college's commitment to environmental sustainability and community engagement. It also highlighted the collaborative efforts of faculty, students, and residents in working towards a greener and more sustainable future.
